
Innitou Road 2008

Woburn legend holds that an ancient Native American tribe known as the Massachusett once lived at the base of Mt. Townada. Stretching toward the heavens, this mountain was deemed sacred ground. It was believed to be the resting place of Manitou, the Great Spirit of the tribe. On a clear day, the summit of the mountain was reflected in the waters of the nearby lake in such a way that the tribe could gaze upon the face of their beloved spirit. To catch a glimpse of the warmhearted smile of Manitou in the rippling waters was considered the highest of fortune, and as a sign of respect and gratitude for for watching over their tribe, the Massachusett named the lake Innitou, meaning "Looking Place of the Great Spirit." To us, Lake Innitou has become known as "Horn Pond" and Mt. Towanda as "Horn Pond Mountain." Just as the Great Spirit was once reflected in these waters, this book is also a reflection: a reflection of our memories at Woburn High.

"The road of life twists and turns and no two directions are ever the same. Yet our lessons come from the journey, not the destination."

-Don Williams, Jr.

"It's always best to start at the beginning." I have always liked that saying, and how true it is, for what great story ever began anywhere else? That is where our story begins, though I must admit it is a peculiar story we have to tell. I dare say it is unlike anything you have ever heard because quite frankly, it is not finished yet. It does not even have a middle. This is what I would call our formal introduction, our preface, or our prelude. Whichever suits you. This is the story of how it all began those many years ago in a small town we called "The Wu," that natives called "Woobin," and outsiders dubbed "Whoa-burn"; that classy, biggest small-town city hugging the outskirts of Boston called Woburn. The beginning of it all is a mess of tangled roads, or maybe better described as a sailor's knot of winding paths. It began with ten elementary schools; ten chunks called the Linscott, Goodyear, Malcolm White, Altavesta, Wyman, Clapp, Shamrock, Reeves, Hurld, and St. Charles. Together, these students would someday become the class of '08. It seemed impossible then. For now, we were blissfully unaware of a world beyond our small groups of recess buddies. But it would not stay this way for long. As time melted away we began venturing out of those groups, many of us trying out for the youth soccer teams, or really any sports team for that matter. Tanner Pride was born. However, sports were not the only adventures. Through music lessons, field trips, grocery runs with Mom, practically everywhere, we began meeting kids from the other schools. Slowly, those once tangled paths began to mingle. Things were being set in motion that were beyond our imaginations, and it only got better from there.

Fifth grade graduation rushed by as if it was being chased by the cootie kids until suddenly it was gone, the cooties with it. I would say middle school was our first big intersection. Those other kids we had been getting to know over the last few years were suddenly in our classes and over our houses as new tight-knit groups grew every day. It was around this time that the east-west, Kennedy-Joyce rivalry bloomed. But even this could not stop us. In fact, it only made us want to know each other even more. The connections just kept growing, in number and in strength. Those many tangled paths had become two very distinct roads, and we were racing down them with nothing but more and more homework to slow us down until finally, without warning, east and west smashed right into each other.

It was here at Woburn High where our speeding lives collided. Here, east and west became center and Kennedy and Joyce kids became The Class of 2008–our class, our second family for the four year journey looming ahead. It was here where those connections that had been forming for years finally ignited into a bond unlike any other that has ever passed through these halls, or will for a long time. Here, many paths became few as two roads became one. This is the story of that road.

So what happens to a story that has no end?

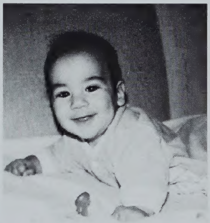
I'M NOT QUITE SURE, BUT LET'S PLAY ALONG AND SEE WHAT HAPPENS.

Baby Face

The years before school started were a time for making neighborhood friends, establishing ourselves, and enjoying life without worry. It was a time where everything was amazing. We could be completely entertained by running along the beach all day or simply going for a ride in the stroller. It was a time not of new beginnings, but the beginning. We were the tiny explorors of life, constantely learning. We were the goofy inventors of games that no one else could understand, original in every sense of the word. As we grew, we learned that glue was not edible and crayons were only for paper, though for those few years, with no rules or limits, the possibilities were endless. Deep down in all of us there is still that little kid who loved to run along the beach or draw on every wall in the house. Don't ever forget that person, because he/she is the one behind who we are today. That person gave us everything we needed to enjoy life to the fullest, and is behind every connection we have ever made.



Wasn't it nice to be young and free and not have a care in the world.

A heart is not judged by how much you love, but how much you are loved by others.

Dan's imagination soars as he pretends to fly around the beach on a blissful summer day.

Smile and the world smiles with you!

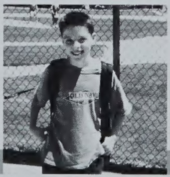
I'M NOT SAYING THAT'S NECESSARILY TRUE.

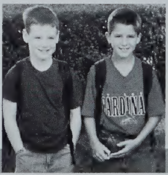
Elementary Days

Cameras snapped as our sentimental mothers watched us line up for our first day of kindergarten. We marched to our classrooms carrying Barbie backpacks and Batman lunchboxes and traveling from Mrs. A to Mr. Z. We climbed the ladder from kindergarten to fifth grade. In no time at all we reached the top and the whole world opened up to us. We were ready to conquer the sixth grade.

The Cool Dudes.

Synchronized swimming shows.





I'M NOT SAYING IT'S TRUE AT ALL.

Middle School Days

Remembering our elementary school cubbies, we stood in awe of our new and improved lockers. Middle school was the stepping stone from elementary school to the high school, and our three years there were filled with Friday night dances, endless trips to Showcase Cinemas, and hanging at the Burlington Mall. We were no longer babies, but far from being independent. New friendships were formed and even more would be made when the Kennedy and Joyce united at Woburn High.

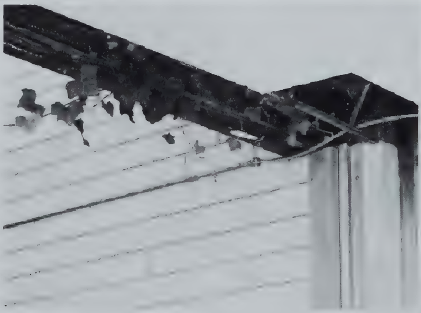
If I ever needed to look for my heart's desire, I wouldn't look any further than my friends.

A symbol of town pride, Woburn High captured the spirit, traditon, and history that tied our community together. Many generations of students, their parents, grandparents, and even great-grandparents were connected to this place, and its walls held generations of memories.



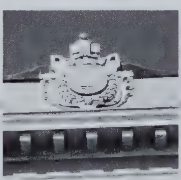
Are we an ivy league school?

Friends and connections are what are important.

Old School

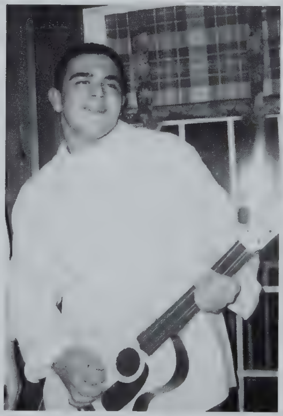
Here in this school, filled with a century's worth of history, tradition, and pride, was where we began our four year journey together. It was old, it was run-down, it was even growing plants from the ceilings, but the original Woburn High was where it all began for us and in that respect, we came to love it. It was never the look of the place that was so engaging, but rather its character...the broken floors, the busted stairways, the missing handrails, and yes, even the random doorstops that caused us plenty of embarassment. The forbidden first floor of buildings six, seven, and eight, with its cold, metal floor and haunted bathroom; the cutoff between buildings three and seven with the staircase so old it moved when walked on; missing handrails just about everywhere; all these quirks and flaws gave the school a special spirit that we came to embrace as a second home. So whether we were busy studying, tripping over doorstops, or booking it through "the dungeon" just for kicks, we were part of a spirit that can never be replicated, and are one of the last classes able to brag of having attended "Old Woburn High."

Buildings may be torn down, but memories will not be forgotten.



Freshman Candids

Excitement and terror were probably the first two emotions we felt as we stepped off the bus or out of our parent's cars, walked under the "canopy," and pushed through the double doors into the striking new world of high school. All around us kids were laughing and yelling as they made their way to homeroom. Even with our tiny pink maps we felt completely at the mercy of the school, and our hearts pounded as we hoarded up enough courage to approach these older kids and ask for directions. The many oddities of the building struck us immediately. Some of us may even remember taking our "freshman fall" over the hidden doorstop between one and six buildings or worse: down the stairs after foolishly thinking a handrail would be there to catch us. With a long, strained shutter, the bell signaled the start of homeroom. Panicking, we scrambled around corners, flew up stairs, and even darted through hallways with plants growing out of the ceilings until finally, either with the help of an upperclassman or by pure luck, we launched ourselves into our homerooms. Embarrassed, anxious, and blatantly "fresh," we slumped down in a seat and waited for whatever came next. Our journey had begun.



SORRY.

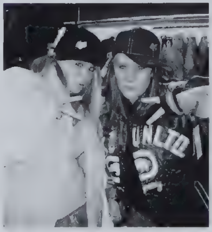
Sophomore Candids

With a full year under our belts, our class made its mark as a part of the spirit of Woburn High. As we walked through those doors for the second time, we felt just a little more confident in ourselves. We were no longer the "newbies," but still far from claiming our spots as upperclassmen. It was the year of comfort. The year of not worrying about college or getting to your first period class on time. Suddenly, everything seemed so easy. There was no more questioning where anything was and the three-seven building cut through was no longer an amazing shortcut but simply a way of moving from one old building to the next. At last it was our turn to be able to point a "frosh" in the right direction. We considered it a right of passage when we were called down to the auditorium and were left not wondering which one it was. This was the middle year, the go-between, when many of us began to come into ourselve by finding out who we were, and establishing even more connections that would carry us through our remaining two years together.

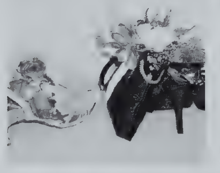
Leap into a new year.



THE QUESTION IS, "HOW ARE WE CONNECTED?"

Sophomore Semi-Formal

On May 5, 2006 we experienced our first real high school dance. Even though it was only semi-formal, everyone "spiffed up" and crowded into the Flaherty Auditorium in the old building. The decorating crews had transformed the walls and creaky floors into a glittering masterpiece, and as everyone filed in the music pounded off the walls. It was not long before high-heeled shoes were being kicked off and everyone rushed to the dance floor to get in the heat of the action. DJ Dan tossed out glow sticks and the eerie green glow filled the room as raffles were called and prizes were snatched up by their winners. The loud music seemed to have broken the clock until at last we were told we had to call it a night. Shoes were reluctantly strapped back on as the DJ announced Led Zeppelin's "Stairway to Heaven" as the final song. The success of this dance demonstrated how unified our class was becoming, and it served as a fitting farewell to the Flaherty.



Shining smile!

Dedication

Mrs. Elaine Farmer

The Class of 2008, along with the Woburn Memorial High School staff, dedicates our 2008 edition of the Innitou to Mrs. Elaine Farmer, who has dedicated over 30 years of service to the Woburn Public School System. Mrs. Farmer is one the busiest teachers in the school and that is evident in the fact that she is Department Chair for Family and Consumer Science, SADD advisor and the Innitou yearbook advisor.

Mrs. Farmer is truly dedicted to the school and to her students. She enjoys teaching her students how to prepare for life after school with her Life Skills classes. There are many days in which you know her classes are making apple pie or Italian dishes due to the wonderful aromas coming from her kitchen. She truly cares about her students, and she makes sure they spend the entire time in her class learning valuable skills.

Her zest for life and her tremendous amount of energy would be hard for anyone else to duplicate. There are many times in which she has been at the school working on yearbook or class lessons until 2:00 in the morning! She is always there if you need her and no matter what task the administration asks her to do, she it gets done. Her work ethic is a role model for all of us.

The halls of Woburn High
Hold the future in supply
Kids who get around
Kids from all sides of town
Kids who do drama
And kids defying karma
There's kids with mad skills
Just looking for thrills
Smart kids with books
Mean kids with looks
Kids who trust luck
Kids that don't give up
Kids who sing in tune
And kids who grow up too soon
There's kids who stab backs
Just looking for laughs
Kids who are crazy
And some are just lazy
There's kids that hang around
Just waiting to be found
With the whole world ahead
Our wings we will spread
The kids who achieve
The kids that believed
Are the kids of Woburn High

new school

Every now and then, however, you are forced to take detours and although they take you down an unfamiliar road, you are still heading toward the same destination. For us, that detour was making the transition from old to new. Having to take a different route every now and then though, is not always so bad. Sometimes you get to see and experience things that you might have missed otherwise. As a class, we were fortunate enough to spend our last two years together in what we dubbed "the new building." Identical hallways, four flights of endless stairway, watching teachers trying to to be tech. wizards, having four fire drills a week, trying to figure out just what "central crossing" was; all these things we were lucky enough to be a part of. As a bonus, many of the historic artifacts were preserved from the old school. By the time graduation came along and we reached the final destination in our journey together, we had all these awesome experiences from both schools, new and old, to remember it by.

Junior year. After two years of hard work, we finally earned our spot as upper classmen. Sadly, our beloved "old school" was reduced to two tall, ragged towers, the remains of seven and eight buildings. It was an eerie feeling, seeing the school we had come to cherish stripped down in front us. The two remaining towers seemed to look mournfully at the new school, as if the building itself knew that it would never again have hundreds of students buzzing through it for a first day of school. As we rounded the corner, however, the massive new building gazed down at us from across the way. We stared in awe as we walked through the back doors, (which at that time served as the front doors) and the school embraced us. The question was, would we embrace it in time? Though it could never take the place of the old school, and certainly never replicate the character and spirit that had made the old building come alive, we slowly realized just how cool it really was in its own way.

Somehow though, things felt different. New year, new priorities, and of course this new school were all on our minds, but something was wrong...we were just as lost as the freshmen! As a foreign-sounding bell beeped, not rang, through the intercom system, we wandered around helplessly, trying to appear as if we knew what we were doing. The freshmen were not fooled. Laughing at our awkward position as the supposedly all-knowing, but truly baffled upper classmen, we eventually found our homerooms in this maze of identical hallways and staircases. As we sat down in our new seats, little did we know what lay ahead. Last year had brought with it many new changes, and this year would hold no shortage of them either! SATs, our Junior Prom, surviving guidance as the great college search began - they were all heading our way. As Mr. Norton came over the intercom to welcome us back, excitement built in our class. It was going to be a very interesting year.

Limos and cars pulled up in front of the Hilton, and as doors opened, spilling a medley of colored gowns, dresses, and tuxes into the twilight, bright white flashes surrounded us. It was Prom night, and it was a night none of us will ever forget. It started with dinner; sitting around the table with friends as laughter mingled with the music, we stuffed ourselves at the buffet. But the night was just beginning. After dinner we turned the music up, the lights down, and showed DJ Dan what the class of '08 was all about!

After hours of strobe lights, disco balls, Cotton Eyed Joes, Cha Cha Slides, and the occasional slow-dance with our dates, it was time to leave, but the magic of the night still hung heavy in the air as we made our way outside. The night was still young, and eager to keep the magic going we all headed off with our friends to restaurants, beaches, or back home to hang out. When our eyelids finally gave in we took with us a spectacular experience, one that brought our class closer together than it had ever been before.

the last first day

At long last, the day we had been waiting for finally came. Some of us walked, some of us took the bus, many of us drove ourselves, but whichever direction we came from we eagerly swaggered through those doors for our "last" first day, full of confidence and pure senior spirit. We walked the halls, searching for friends and returning to our usual morning haunts. Teachers were running around, trying to copy and organize last minute syllabi or class rules, while booming voices echoed from the intercom, trying to ensure everything was set for the new year. But again, there was something different. Directions were not the problem—we finally knew how to get around the building like true upper classmen. It was not nerves—we had waited too long for this day to be nervous about it. And it could not be senioritis—the year had not even started yet! No, it was something more, something a little less tangible.

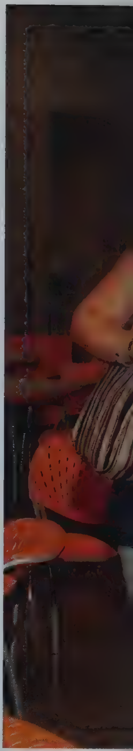
the last first day



It had to be that we worked so hard to reach this point, and now that we were finally here, it seemed almost unreal. It was like having someone throw a surprise birthday party for us, only instead of a birthday cake and party hats, we were left with just the surprise. Time flew by so quickly! Suddenly the bell gave its digital beep, reminding many of us of our "first" first day of school at Old Woburn High. The bell was considerably louder and definitely more intimidating those three years ago. The under classmen, hardly in agreement, scattered in all directions, flying up the four flights of stairs as we strolled nonchalantly, savoring the feeling of accomplishment at reaching this point in our journey together. The final bleep of the homeroom bell echoed through the halls as we took our seats, and the grand finale officially began.

COMMON ST
KEEP

It did not take long for our class to connect...the foundations had been under construction for quite some time by this point. Even as separate pieces, the elementary and middle school teachers saw the magic just sparkling under the surface. They knew something special was about to happen, and all it took was that head on collision called ninth grade. The two roads we had been on suddenly merged into one gigantic highway, and as we all collided into one another that something special simply exploded. Other classes before us were what I would call a typical high school mesh. No doubt there were those special classes, such as those proud to have included the brave men and women who served our country during wars ranging from World War II to Vietnam.

Our class, however, was a different brand of special. We grew up in a world on the very edge of a new era; the twenty-first century was just the beginning and we were there to see it happen. In the midst of this changing world we were the trend-setters, the class that left a permanent mark on Woburn High, a mark unlike any other class that time swept through these halls had ever left, and one that would serve as an example for many classes to come.

As a class, the bonds we shared with each other were unmatched by any other class we encountered during our four years together. Typical stereotypes simply could not explain how our class was structured. Sure, we had jocks, suffering artists, music freaks, goths, geeks, future politicians of America, gossipers, punks, and of course the "others," but when it came down to it, we were a class of just one scene: The Class of '08. Simply put, almost everyone was a floater, and we linked ourselves together in every possible way, no matter who belonged to what "group." Lunch was a Picasso painting and everywhere you turned in the halls, Tanner Football shirts were sprinkled among Led Zeppelin tees, cheering skirts with ripped jeans, and everything in between.

Whichever adjective you choose, nothing could come close to describing the feeling of finding a second family in each other to come to every day of the week, and that was what our class was: a second family. Perhaps this was one of the most important features that distinguished our class from every other: our connections. Nothing could hold us back. We were racing down that highway in the carpool lane and waving at the other traffic growing smaller in our rearview mirror.

Angels

God's greatest creations, which he uses as his holy messengers
Put on this Earth for a short-time to impact people's lives forever
God takes them back when he needs their assistance
They continue to watch over the people they touched on Earth
Watch over their family from Heaven
Allow you to feel their presence even though you cannot see them
Are the reason that you do not feel lonely when you are alone
Give hope to the "hopeless"
Love the "unloved"
Brighten up your spirits on the saddest days
Make you smile when times are tough
Carry you when you are weak
Get you through each day
Allow you to love yourself
Allow you to love others
Make impossiblities become possible
Point out the beauty of Nature
Dry your tears when you are sad
Comfort you during times of hardship
Make life worth living

Woburn may have been a city in face, but it was a small town at heart, capturing the feeling one might expect to find only in the most rural, contained of places. Growing up here, we were able to discover this through the experiences that tied us together as a class, and as a community. In truth, those connections we made as a class did not simply stop at the front doors, but carried out into the many neighborhoods throughout the city. Consider this: many of us are not the first in our families to have graduated from WMHS. In fact, a good portion of our class are second, third, even fourth generation to pass through these halls. Many of our families are connected because of this unique trait: grandparents graduated together, old family friends, and so much more. The very foundations of Woburn rest on this feeling of history and connection, both major themes of our lives together here. Yet, all of these feelings can be combined into one world that seemed to define our beloved hometown: Tradition.

Tradition is what this city was built on and something that has been preserved through our time here and beyond. When the term "Tanner Pride" was coined in the seventies, it came to embody the spirit that filled every street and back road here. In a broad sense, it describes feeling found in annual events such as the Halloween Parade, the holiday Festival on the Common, and the summer concert series. Every hang-out spot, historic building, and local custom created the strong community bond which provided a colorful, vibrant backdrop to our journey.

But the real essence of Tanner Pride, the hub of Woburn's rich feeling of tradition, was found right here at the high school. So many of our parents, grandparents, even great-grand parents walked the halls of the original building, creating the traditions that we then carried to the new school, a symbol of our desire to keep the dynamic and spirited past of Woburn alive in the twenty-first century and beyond. Sports were always the main focal point of Tanner Pride here, though we made them so much more than something only sports enthusiasts could enjoy. At any sporting event, the vibe between the students, faculty, parents, community members, and the team itself sent electric pulses through the air; the energy was almost uncontrollable. This connection between the fans and the team emphasized how strong our connections were and paved the way for new traditions to surface.

Nowhere else could we have experienced these feelings of tradition, feelings which made our time together even more enjoyable. Perhaps our bonds would not even have been as strong as they were had they not had a place packed with such rich spirit to develop. Every road trip starts somewhere. The Wu was spectacularly unique from the other towns that surrounded it and we are proud to call this city of timeless character and tradition our hometown.

FORE!

The air is absolutely still as Renda lines up for a final putt. Eager spectators hold their breath and fellow teammates Keane, King, and Rae stare piercingly at one of their captains; the game hinged on this final play. Even the birds go silent as Renda gets into position for the make-or-break play. Ever so gently he taps the ball, gazing breathlessly as it slowly rolls through the grass. Time slows and it seems he can see every blade bend under the ball's weight until plunk, it sinks into the hole, cheers erupting from the silence. Throughout the season the Golf Team dominated, bonding through numerous pasta parties and many more clinched matches. They were a force to be reckoned with, often being called our school's Dynasty. They won Leagues for the sixth year in a row, having won a total of fifteen out of seventeen seasons. They even qualifed for states...an honor only seven other teams can boast having.

"You should have seen their faces when Drew King made par for the first time."

Brittney Murphy trekked up four flights of stairs behind Thomas Buonopane. Thomas Buonopane designed a movie poster starring Joe Flaherty. Joe Flaherty is also in the movie poster with Mark Iritano.

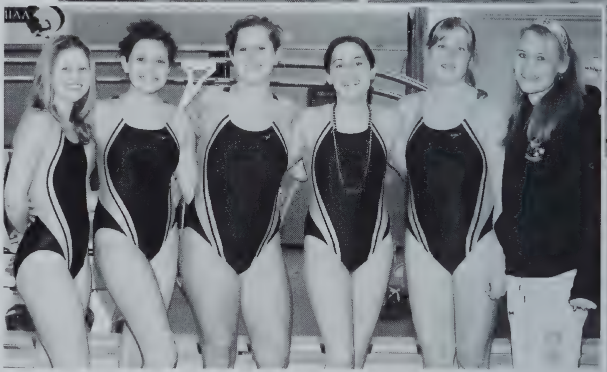
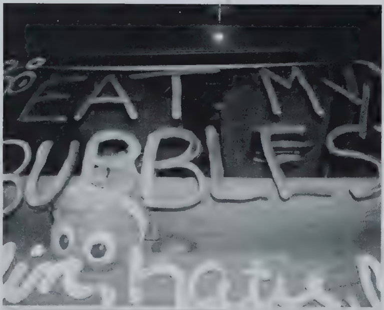
Just keep Swimming

Three-two-one...DIVE! With one giant thrust, the team springs off the starting boards and crashes into the pool. The sleek movements of the swimmers cut straight through the water. Thompson and Marsden lead the way as Kuhn, Cabral, Bissett and Bogonis follow swiftly behind. Racing from one end of the pool to the other and back again. The girls push themselves to beat their personal bests. The Swim Team is always striving to acheive their goals. With Nemo as their mascot, they are always driven to "just keep swimming." They pump up for meets by blaring "Stronger" by Kanye West and by huddling around a stuffed doll of their idol for an "all-in" before taking on any challenge before them. As Nemo is passed from captain to captain, the sense of tradition and connection floats between them, and the bonds they build ensure that they will find "floaties" in one another, should they ever find themselves struggling in the deep end.





Sam Fuller and Ethan Nolan both want a career in the Marines. Ethan Nolan once wrote a paper with Alex Grande. Alex Grande climbed the rope in gym at the Kennedy right after Michelle LeBlanc.

The cool breeze drifting through your hair, the smacking of sneakers against pavemen, and even the trees bursting into color as autumn reaches its climax. All these details blend to make Cross Country an exhilerating experience. The "trackies" were out in wind, rain, snow, even blistering heat, ready to give it their all. XC boys returned as the defending Middlesex League Champions (MLCs) and the girls team promised a tough fight. Both teams, however, proudly boasted, "Our sport is your sport's punishment." Chas, Matt, Kasey, Zach, Mike, Kayla, Robin, Michelle, Sarah, Jill, Emily, Sarah, and Tabatha tore up the pavement with their skill and dedicatio to one of the most challenging and focus-based sports Woburn High has to offer. Through their dedication to the team, they created even sronger bonds with each other.

At the blast of the whistle, Ally Fairweather books it down the field and the crowd roars. Kristen Williams passes the ball to Pandolph who darts across the middle and dishes it to Castine. Callahan is like a wall in the net, deflecting shots from every angle. The crack of the ball as it is slapped up and down the field. The sharp intake of breath as the crowd watches in suspense and the encouraging yells from the sidelines combine to make a Field Hockey game an intense and riveting experience. However, the magic does not stop when the ref calls the final time. Both on and off the field, this team has an incredible bond. Whether it is showing off in insane dance-offs, throwng tie-dying parties, or even tossing Ally into a pool just because they can, they savor not only a game well played, but each minute spent building incredible bonds with one another and living their powerful motto: "She who has the will cannot be beat."

What are athletics without a little friendly competition? The Boys Soccer Team had a slight rivalry with the girls team, but each was just as successfull as the other. With skill, drive and determination, the boys team took on every match, ready to give it their all. Racing up and down the field, launching the ball back and forth and blocking shots from every angle, Dana, Matt, Mike, Axel, Andrew, Scott, Dan, Ryan, Devin, Adam, Tommy, Sean, Steve, and Dave were always ready to give one-hundred and ten percent, no matter what challenges lay before them. Maybe it was the hours spent duking it out playing Fifa on Playstation 2, or Steve dressing up in a chicken suit, or even the countless food fights and TP wars with the girls team that helped foster the tight-knit connections between team members, but whatever the reason, the Boys Soccer Team was always there for each other, and always will be.

GOAL!

The whistle blows and Jenna, Brittney, Emily, Al, Kristina, Bry, Katie, Lau, and "Shooee" pelt down the field, socking the ball back and forth. Jenna digs her cleat into the ground, grinding to a stop before launching the ball across the way to Lau and Shooe, who skillfully swerves it around the defenceman before passing it off to Kristina. With one sharp breath, Kristina slams her foot into the ball, sending it flying forward with a crack. The goalie dives, but the ball slips right into the top left corner and hits the net with a smooth swish as the ref. calls time. The Girls Soccer Team was a powerhouse, creaming Winchester with a two to one win. Whether it was savoring the awesome season, hanging out in between games at pasta parties, playing laser tag, or having massive food-fights with the boys team, the Girls Soccer Team knew how the game was played. They bonded in ways that allowed them to build an almost sixth-sense with each other on the field. After the final game, this bond carried over to school and beyond, demonstrating the dedication the girls have to the sport and most importantly, to each other.

"You should have seen their faces when they beat Winchester."

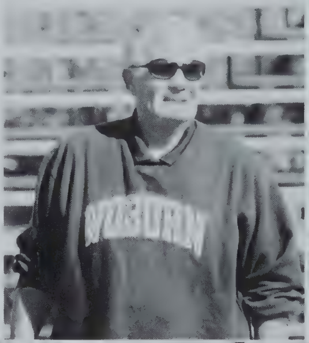
Geoff Hogan gets a ride to school every day from Pat Callahan. Pat Callahan made his confirmation with Ryan Finn. Ryan Finn was in Builders Club at the Kennedy with Claudia Martinez.

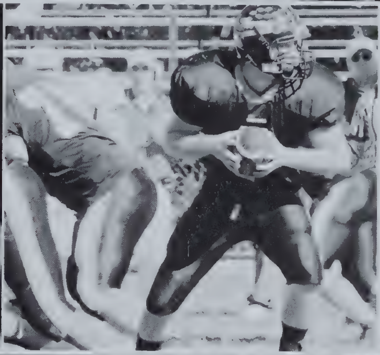
Touch Down!

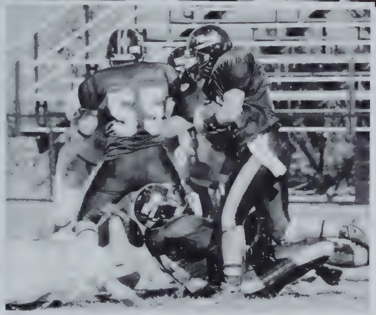


The Football Team is perhaps one of the most recognized symbols of high school athletics and at Woburn High there is no exception. Aside from all the stereotypes lay the hard work and dedication of students, who took pride in giving the sport their all and working together as a team. Whether it was charging across the field, plowing through the defense to score that winning touchdown, or simply hanging out in-between games, it made the winning combo. Through pasta parties and crazy food eating contests, the team formed lasting connections with each other. They were able to focus on succeeding during the next game and also a relationship with each other that transgressed a simple win-lose mindset. No matter what the stats, the football team was always ready to achieve excellence and it was this attitude that earned them a winning season.

"You should have seen their faces when they were told that they were going to be the first football team to play on the new field."

Claudia Martinez walked by Anh Phan in D building. Anh Phan had a study junior year with Cara Fish. Cara Fish went to Cheering Nationals in Las Vegas with Denielle Cesvette. Denielle Cesvette sat at the same table as Diana Benullo in Ms. Child's art class sophomore year.





Diana Benullo is best friends with Renee Breau. Renee Breau had computer graphics with Brian Cataldo. Brian Cataldo sat in the stands for the pep rally with Khaldoun Maharam.

Cheerleading

During the fall season, the soccer and football cheerleading teams were hard at work perfecting competition routines as well as game cheers. Each team put countless hours into practicing these routines before bringing them to the field to support the Tanners. Football cheerleaders Alex, Kylee, Cara, Tori, Nicole, and Jess pumped up the crowd and gave their full support to the team at every game, while Tina and Jojo manned the soccer games, putting everything they had into making the game an enjoyable, entertaining experience for both the teams and the fans. Each team pledged their support both on and off the field by attending football and soccer pasta parties, as well as creating colorful, spirited posters to personalize their support towards the boys, who were grateful for all the encouragement. Both teams excelled during their competitions, which were proudly held here at WMHS. All the hard work paid off and the girls enjoyed a great season together.

Khaldoun Maharam went to the class selection assembly with Michelle Kuhn. Michelle Kuhn talks to Kim Hurley in the halls before 7th period. Kim Hurley asked Mr. Daley if she could sing & dance for the class with Jaqui DeRosa.

The Powderpuff Game was a new annual tradition at Woburn High, pitting girls from the senior class against girls from the junior class in an all-out game of tag football. At Library Field, crowds of supporters lined up to cheer the teams on, though they made sure to stay behind the yellow caution tape: this game, was going to be intense! Sporting shirts with the slogan "Dominate '08," the senior girls jogged onto the field with pride and excitement, eager to take the juniors down. As fans drank hot chocolate and munched on candy bars being sold as a class fundraiser, the tension thickening with every minute, both teams lined up, ready to roll. As Referees Seitz and Bridgeo blew their whistles, the crowds cheered and both teams launched into the competition. Even though the junior team won 38 to 21, the senior girls were not discouraged. Filled with Tanner Pride, they had a great experience to take away with them.

"I will always remember all the family Halloween parties after the parade."

Tanner Pride was probably the phrase that meant the most to us as students growing up in Woburn. Coined by Coach Peter Sullivan in in the 1970s, the term has come to describe the very essence of what it means to be a Woburnite. At school, it connected each class together in school pride with events including the Turkey Toss and annual Pep Rally before the traditional Thanksgiving Woburn vs. Wincester game. Eventually, however, it spilled into the community to become a symbol of town pride. From the annual Flag Day celebrationto the Relay for Life and even simply driving around and reminiscing about the many different places where everybody hung out, it came to symbolize this community and its foundations in tradition.

People danced to together to one of the few slow songs of the night, including the Homecoming King and Queen song, "You're Beautiful" by James Blunt. DJ Dan gave the microphone over to the junior class president, Lia Schelief, and she announced our Homecoming King and Queen; Matt Ramos and Robin Allen. As the crisp autumn of November slipped into the brisk winter of December and the holiday spirit filled the air with a sweet joy, our class began preparing for the special Holiday Dance. Held on Friday, December 7, 2007, the main foyer of the school was transformed into a masterpiece of red, green, and silver banners. Decorative lights cast a soft glow on the holiday tree. Toys for Tots donations and other small pieces of holiday cheer captured a sliver of holiday spirit that was so abundant in the air, creating a "winter wonderland." Everyone donned their new dresses and suits splashed with the vibrant colors of the season. Together we enjoyed a night filled with dancing, friends, and wonderful memories.

Celebrating the Holidays

The holidays are a time for celebration and family traditions. Although we all celebrate the season in different ways, the same spirit is alive in each of us. Some of us celebrate by lighting a Menorah, others a Christmas Tree, and still others emphasize the true religious meaning. Whether we stuff ourselves with turkey around a table filled with family, or simply enjoy a microwaved happy meal in front of the TV, we are all a part of that magical spirit that makes this time of the year one of the most cherished.

Merry Christmas

With all the hustle and bustle that seems to take over these two months, it can be easy to get caught up in it all. However, the true essence of the season lies beyond the glittering trees, flickering Menorahs, juicy turkeys and even the gifts waiting impatiently to be opened. When we step back from the craziness, it becomes obvious that the true holiday spirit comes from the time we spend with family. Our beliefs may be different in those subtle ways, but we can all relate to that feeling of tradition that brightens these two months.

As the holiday season approaches this year, be sure to take a moment to step out of the crazed mall-runs and think about the special traditions that you and your family share. It is these traditions that create the holiday spirit we all love, and that will allow us to pass this spirit on in the years to come.

1. Snowflakes mark the beginning of winter, which is full of Christmas Spirit.

2. Christmas Tree ornaments represent the family tradition of decorating the christmas tree.

3. Stockings were traditionally left outside for St. Nicholas to fill with Christmas goodies. Now stocking are left inside and are simply a place for Santa Claus to leave the smaller gifts.

4. Holly is considered a typical, festive decoration, which is more associated with a traditional Christmas.

5. Reindeer represent the magic of Christmas. Santa has nine magic reindeer, Rudoplh being the most famous.

6. Candles represent the more religious aspect of Christmas. One candle a week is lit during Advent, which is the time of preparation for the birth of Christ.

7. Bells are soothing and calm the stress of Christmas craziness.

8. Santa Claus is the symbol of the imagination of young children.

Tanner Spirit

New Stadium Dedication

WELCOME HOME TANNERS

In terms of school spirit, Tanner Pride is perhaps most obvious sitting in the bleachers, cheering on the Tanners at a WMHS football game. Our class was extremely lucky to witness the completion of the brand new stadium, finished just in time for the 2007 Thanksgiving game. Over thirty-thousand people were expected to show up to cheer the team on and enjoy the new "hub" of Tanner Pride. We were also lucky enough to be the first class able to graduate from the stadium. So whether filled with the roar of dedicated fans or the applaud of a graduating class at the end of their journey together, the new stadium will remain a symbol of school and town pride and the unbeatable Tanner Spirit for many generations to come.

Daniel Chiumiento played football with Stephen Ruby. Stephen Ruby sat behind Paurry Joseph at the 1st day of school assembly. Paurry Joseph sat two rows down from Jennie Crawford at the Lip Sync.

Whether it be in a freezing cold ice rink or a toasty gymnasium, these girls inspired our boys to play their best during the game. Throughout the season these girls worked hard in perfecting countless cheers and routines. Cheerleaders embody Tanner Pride and always help our fans keep up our black and orange spirit..

Cheering

Jennie Crawford cheered for Pop Warner with Victoria Fasanelli. Victoria Fasanelli did the meiosis puppet show in Ms. Oura's class with Kyle Teves. Kyle Teves went to the Joyce with Colleen Tagen.

Drive To the Hoop

It's a Friday night at the gym, and the stands are filled. The girls are already on the court warming up with shooting drills and weaves led by seniors Emily Holland, Brittney Murphy, and Jenna Fralick. Once the game starts, intensity increases and pressure rises. Over the course of the game, Holland sinks some threes, Fralick drives to the hoop, and Murphy hits some shots from the outside. Throughout the season the girls displayed heart and desire. They made an effort both on and off the court to create memories that won't be forgotten. The memories include SWAT team, Rico, E.R.D., pasta parties, Spaulding, beating Belmont and trips to Papa Ginos.

NOTHING But Net

Throughout the season Mark Dwyer, Matt Welch, and Dan McLaughlin led the team to many wins with the help of our senior boys Franklin Cespedes, Spencer Capel, Brendan O'Brien, and Eric Rice. These boys bonded in a way that made them better as a team, especially on game days when their Tanner Pride was always apparent. On game days the team dressed up in shirts and ties to look professional and sophisticated. They had a great season and should be proud of all they have accomplished together.

Seniors Steve Nagle, John Renda, Dana DiPinto, Nico Gilbert, Colin McDonough, Kasey Ahern, and Pat Callahan led the boys hockey team to a successful and memorable season. The boys hockey team had a winning 9-3-3 season because they came together as a team through pasta parties and long bus rides. The boys showed Tanner Pride throughout the season and into the tournament.

Home of the
TANNERS

Matthew Berardi designed a logo in computer graphic class along with Andrea Silva. Andrea Silva created a mythical creature in Art 1 along with Bao Nghe. Bao Nghe went to the Dating Game sophomore year like Aimee McDonough.

Aimee McDonough went to the Goodyear with Emily Guarente; so did Stephen Femino. Stephen Femino sits next to Chuong Mach in math class. Chuong Mach was in Ms. Foley's history class and studied Civil Rights with Andrew Cafua.

Andrew Cafua was in the same jeopardy group in Ms. Foley's class with Krystopher Berg. Krystopher Berg wears glasses just like Richard Beverage. Richard Beverage's last name is a drink that you can buy in Austin, Texas which is Jamie Austin's last name.

HIP Check

Jim McKenny once said, "Half the game is mental; the other half is being mental." This team exemplifies that quote because of their crazy personalities. Shawna Walsh and Alex Pridham led a close tight knit team to a winning season with the help of Michelle Donnelly and Liz Braese. Every Friday there is a game in which the Orange Team faces the Black Team. The winner of this game gets to skate a victory lap around the rink with the "Tanner Cup."

The girls hockey team could possibly be the one of the closest teams in the school because of their insane pasta parties, spontaneous dance parties and scavenger hunts. Among other forms of team building, the girls have sleepovers and go bowling in costumes. These girls had a great season both on and off the ice. Shout out to Mike's Pastry.

Jamie Austin's last name is a city and Makayla Canada's last name is a country. Makayla Canada's last name is a country and so is Meridith Holland's last name. Meridith Holland read Looking Backwards just like Kelly Bogonis.

GOING To The Mat

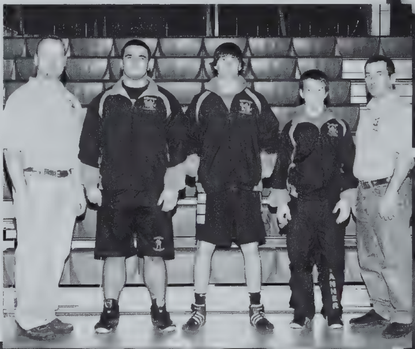
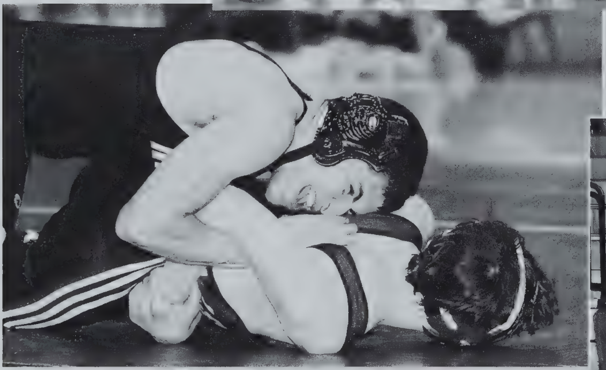
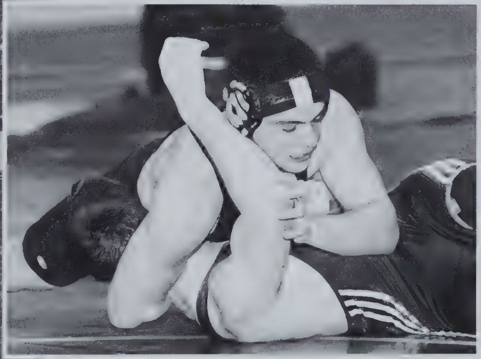
Wrestling is a sport of both mental and physical exertion. This year the boys displayed great strength as well as teamwork. The boys were always positive, which enabled them to work together to win matches. They were a force in the Middlesex League. The boys also grew as a team outside the gym because of trips to The Restaurant, bus rides and other team events.





Kelly Bogonis cheered Pop Warner with Ashlee McGlashing. Ashlee McGlashing sits next to Ashley McAdams in homeroom. Ashley McAdams was friends with Katherine Sullivan in middle school.

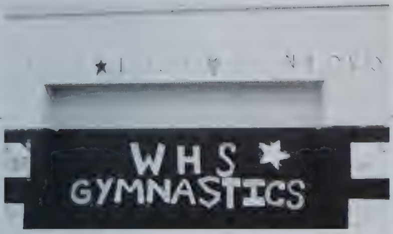


Katherine Sullivan went through Michael Carney's register line at Stop 'n Shop. Michael Carney has the same last name as Stephanie Carney; like Ahsley O'Neil has the same last name as Patrick O'Neill. Patrick O'Neill played Fishy-Fishy cross my ocean like Andrew Busa.

Andrew Busa went to the Wyman with Brendan McInerny. Brendan McInerny is cousins with Edward McInerny. Edward McInerny has four syllables in his last name like Brittney Fitchett-Morgan and Leo Cavarretta and Marlon Scagnolato.

Stick*It*

This year was a challenging year for the gymnastics girls. However, Danielle Cesvette, Victoria Fasanelli, and Michelle Kuhn led the team to work together and accomplish many goals. Through hardwork and dedication, these girls became united as one. Downtime at competitions allowed these girls to make special memories.



Marlon Scagnolato had the same English class as Janelle James Janelle James also had the same English class as Richard Killeen Richard Killeen's last name rhymes with Kimberly Jean's last name. Kimberly Jean bought ice coffee at Dunkin's like Desiree Smith. Desiree Smith was in Driver's Ed with Fernando Cintron.

Going The Distance

Both track teams have had great seasons this year. Right from the start the guys took off establishing themselves as a power house in the Middlesex League, led by Matt Pereira, Mike McDonough, Daniel Tobin and Zach Delano. Dominating in all events, the boys moved towards an undefeated season and State Championship. The girls team, led by Bryanna Reddy, Sarah Kelley, Michelle Angeloand Robin Allen started off slowly but quickly bounced back. Through striving for their own personal bests, individual competitors came together as a team. Track meets last for hours, but individual events last only minutes. The team waits and cheers until each competitor has finished his or her event. Tanner Pride is evident once again!

Fernando Cintron also had Driver's Ed with Sadiq Abdullahi. Sadiq Abdullahi passed by Pavikumar when he was at his locker. Ravikumar Patel has the same homeroom as Cassandra Parceiro.

Cassandra Parceiro and Codye Grooms both enjoy chatting on AIM. Codye Grooms walked up E building like Sean Tarencz. Sean Tarencz had picture in the Kennedy yearbook near Christian Pena.

"A teacher is a compass that activates the magnets of curiosity, knowledge, and wisdom in the pupils."

- Ever Garrison

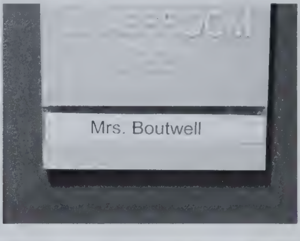
By now, you are probably beginning to understand just what our class was all about. The connections we shared with each other and our community paved the way for a smooth ride down this highway. Yet what road is complete without the guidelines? And what story is complete without the heroes getting a little backup from their trusty sidekicks? Friends, family– they were with us the entire way. But perhaps too often the importance of those guidelines on our roads fades into the background. After all, if it were not for them, the road would be a free-for-all mess. What about our teachers?

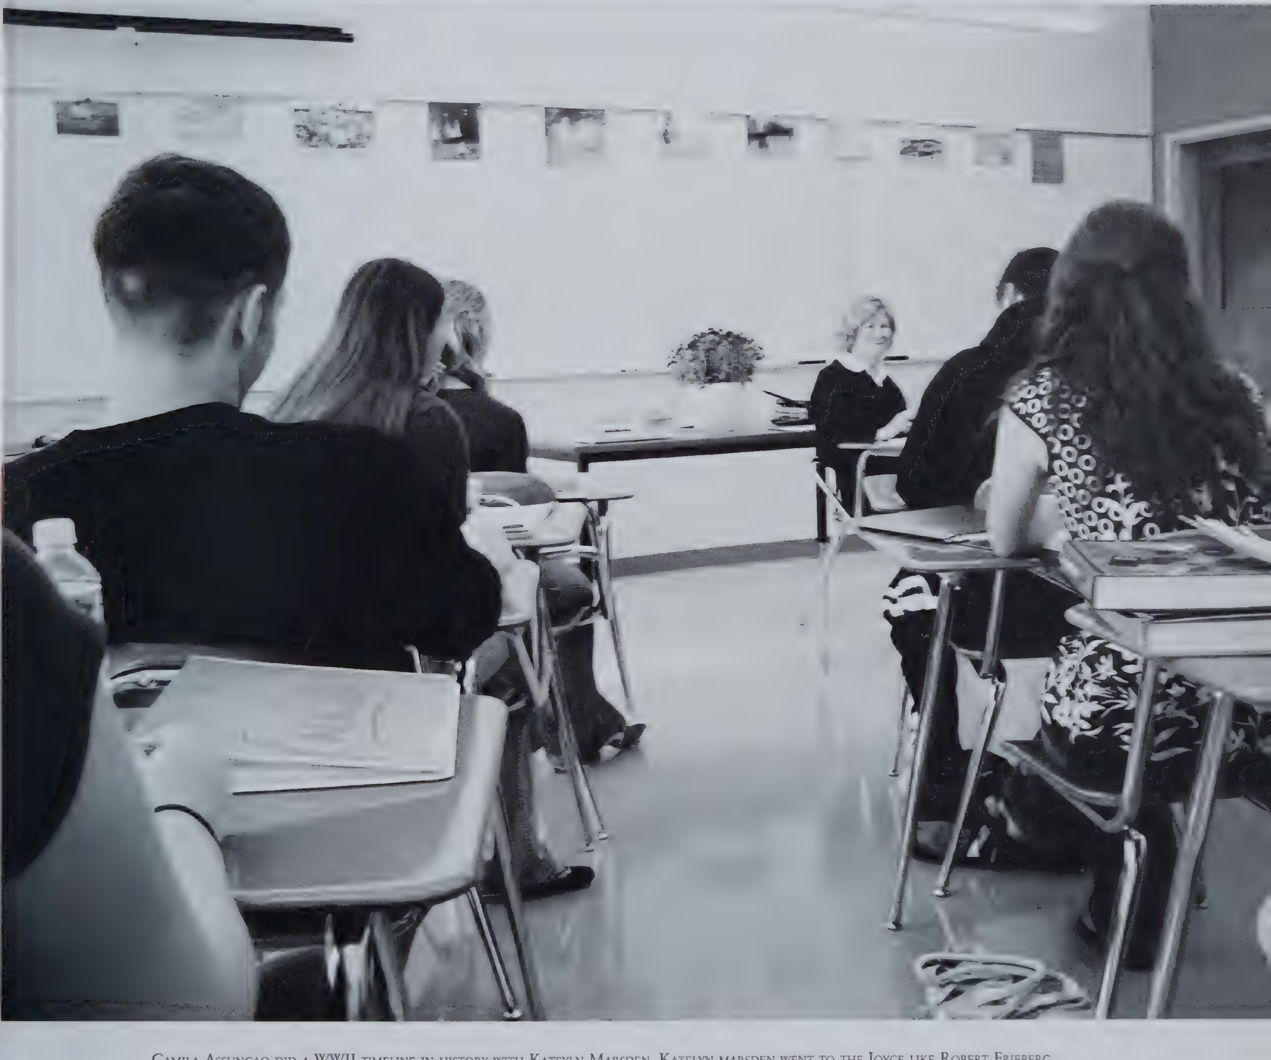
From pre-school to graduation, thirty hours a week were spent under the care and guidance of our teachers. Often times, students do not think about how much time this actually is or how much influence these men and women have had on their lives. They taught us everything from reading and writing to how to make friends and eventually, through the good and the bad, what it means to grow up. They were a part of our lives just as much as a parent or friend...and in some ways even more. Their influences stretched beyond the books and grades as many of us discovered that teachers really are normal people, not machines recharging each night in the classroom as we once thought.

As we grew older and our lives became more complex, many of us found a confidant in that special teacher and forged strong connectons with him/her. I think each of us could have said that by the time we graduated we had at least one teacher who impacted us in a very personal way, a way that on some level helped us tap into the hidden potential we possessed all along. Through the many bumps and twists we faced on this road, each of us had that teacher who was an eager ear, who would always be there to listen, to inspire, and to embolden us to follow our hearts and chase our dreams, no matter how difficult it might have seemed. They helped us become adults and to prepare us for the world that lie ahead. And every so often, they were there if we simply needed a shoulder to spill our troubles on.

Our teachers were central in shaping the people we were destined to become. Without them, without our guidelines, who knows how off-course we might have gotten? They ensured that we had had a clear direction, the knowledge and power to stay on course, and if we were running low on gas they made sure we filled up and sped off on our way, letting nothing slow us down.

Christian Pena's homeroom is in the same hall as Jaimin Patel's homeroom. Jaimin Patel walked by Ms. Child's art class while Monserrat was in class. Monserat Fernandez was in the same class (Mrs. Childs) with Camila Assuncao.





Camila Assuncao did a WWII timeline in history with Kateyln Marsden. Katelyn marsden went to the Joyce like Robert Frieberg. Robert Frieberg's mom works in the school system like Dana's mom.

If

If you can see your students as diamonds in the rough,
Inspiring to do their best and not just good enough,
If you can open doorways, light sparks, and keep them glowing
And see the love of learning as seeds that are sowing,
If you can keep on caring and remember why you teach,
You'll give your students wings to fly and show them the stars to reach.

Neil Gwin was in the same math class as Josh Travis Junior year.

Mrs. Carol Anderson
Special Eduation

I started working in 1967 in the Lynn school system teaching biology. I chose this profession because I was inspired by my high school biology teacher. She was bright and assertive with a great sense of humor. One of my memorable events was being part of the Steering Committee for the Accrediation process. It was an opportunity to get to know a great team of people.
One special moment was being recognized for 20 years of service to Woburn. One of my favorite quotes is "Laughter is the best medicine." I will really miss all the people, the flow of the school year and a sense of purpose. My experience here has been an ultimate pleasure!

Mrs. Marianne Cushing
Nurse

I started working in 1986 at the elementary schools in Woburn. I chose this profession because I had saw how wonderful and helpful nurses were to my family.
I enjoy seeing students overcome medical disablities and successfully complete their education.
One special moment that I will always remember is when a student who stuggled with medical issues graduated from the high school. He was an inspiration for all.
I truly will miss the students and staff.

Mrs. Elaine Farmer
Family and Consumer Science

I started working in 1973 at the Joyce Middle School as a Home Economics teacher. I chose this profession because I enjoyed cooking and sewing. My 9th grade teacher encouraged me to pursue a career in education. Since I like helping people, teaching was the perfect fit for me.
My most cherished memory was being able to present my son and daughter with their diplomas at graduation. Another favorite was when as co-yearbook advisor with Mrs. Thifault, we received the 2005 New England Co-Advisor of the Year and the 2006 National Commemorative Yearbook Award. I truly have enjoyed my teaching career and working as advisor to many of the clubs and activities over the past 35 years.

Mrs. Louise Moore
Foreign Language

I started working in 1966 for the Weymouth School system teaching English and Latin. I chose this profession because many members of my family are in the teaching profession. My department will remember me for hitting the print button for a 200 page document and going through the entire printer toner. My students will remember me missing the seat of the rolling chair and falling on the floor.
I will miss the students and the young humor and latest expressions.
My daughter recently went into teaching so it is nice recognize my own diligence in her.
One of my favorite quotes is "Pick your friends carefully! Show me your friends and I'll tell you what you are."

Those who INSPIRE us along the way

It has been noted that you never know what someone will say that could have a lasting impact on you. There could be no better proof of this than the relationships we have forged with the teachers and staff over the past four years. They have influenced us in many ways, perhaps more than we will ever know, and have given us a whole new outlook on life. They have traveled with us on our journey from move up day to graduation; always there to make sure we never had any shortage of work to do. But there is another side to them that has made an even larger impact on us. The advice, the smiles, and the constant support and encouragement are just a few of the many ways that the WMHS staff has made a lasting impact on our lives. It could have been a simple hello from the secretary, or a casual pat on the back from a coach. Maybe it was an adviser helping us plan a class event, or even having the quickest of conversations with a teacher after class. Our experiences may have been different, but our impressions are the same–there was always someone there to make sure we were as confident and enthusiastic as we could be.

Our senior year was full of changes that gave us a glimpse of what life would be like after graduation. Whether we would ever admit it or not, it was a scary few months. The first chapter of our lives was coming to a close as the future stretched before us with endless possibilities. Yet, no matter how scary it seemed, the staff was always there to guide us. If nothing else, it will be this that we remember them for. A road trip is useless without good, solid directions, and that is exactly what they provided us with. So now, even as these four years grow smaller and smaller in our rear view mirrors, the impact the WMHS staff had on us, not only as students, but as individuals, could not be any closer to our hearts.

Christopher Dabrieo was in Guidence at the same time as Derek Colamartino.

If I Could Teach You, Teacher

If I could teach you, teacher,
I'd teach you how much more
you have accomplished
than you think you have.
I'd show you the seeds
you planted years ago
that are now coming into bloom.
I'd reveal to you the young minds that have expanded under your care,
the hearts that are serving others
because they had you as a role model.
If I could teach you, teacher,
I'd show you the positive effect
you have had on me and my life.
Your homework is to know your value to the world,
to acknowledge it, to believe it.
Thank you, teacher.

PLEASANT ST

It is true, the class of 2008 was perhaps one of the best classes that have passed through Woburn for a long time; the teachers would have attested to that. Despite being one of the most diverse classes, we had this absolutely remarkable habit of always working together and in doing so, we became leaders in the school and in the community. What got us there? How was it that this motley crew was able to come together to bring so much positive energy to Woburn?

Every kid eventually finds their way and goes off in a different direction, but the answer to how we were able to bring such vibrant life to Woburn High lies in how we found these different directions. For four years we traveled on the same road, yet even then, without even knowing it, we were forging our different routes and finding out who we were as individuals. In fact, this journey of self-discovery began as we were barely beginning to find our way through the winding halls of the old school!

The answer lies in the many different activities and clubs we became a part of. From community service, drama, and government, to math, music, art, and everything in between, our different tastes not only emphasized the uniqueness of our connection, but also the beauty of our diversity. These clubs gave us the chance to connect with people of similar interests as well as discover a part of ourselves that we may not have even known existed. They gave even the quietest students the chance to tap into their inner self, and to show the community the dazzling talent that lay ready to take the world by storm.

Leo Club, Youth and Government, Concert Choir, Band, Key Club, Interact Club, SADD, The Giving Camp, The Bulls Eye, Youth Council, History Club, Habitat for Humanity; the list just keeps going. All of these gave us the chance to figure out just which direction would lead us to what we wanted in life. The road could be confusing sometimes, but once we found our compass to point us the right way, it is no wonder we were able to bring so much passion to Woburn. I guarantee the mark we made is still there.

Hey, remember that time you threw your retainer away at lunch and everyone saw you dig through the trash to find it? No? You don't? That's funny, because we do. Embarrassing moments are inevitable and even though you think no one will remember them, we also promise, though it may seem mortifying today, tomorrow you'll be able to laugh along with everyone else. So the next time milk comes out of your nose or you walk into the wrong bathroom remember this: it only gets funnier with time.

Evening Of Fine Arts

The Evening of Fine Arts was held on a gorgeous spring evening in June 2007. At last, the many talented art students in the school system had their chance to shine. Teachers selected the most talented students from kindergarten through grade twelve to set up their prized pieces in the lower gym of the high school. Pieces ranged from 3D work to paintings, computer graphic designs, photos, and even videos. Over three-hundred and fifty parents, students, and teachers attended to view the hard work of the chosen students. The night was a great experience for all, giving the elementary and middle school students the chance to see what they could accomplish someday at the high school. Everybody left proud of the array of talent that students from all over Woburn demonstrated through their hard work and dedication to the arts.

Life is a Highway

Life's like a road that you travel on
When there's one day here and the next day gone
Sometimes you bend sometimes you stand
Sometimes you turn your back to the wind
There's a world outside every darkened Door
Where blues won't haunt you anymore
Where the brave are free and lovers soar
Come ride with me to the distant shore
We won't hesitate break down the garden gate
There's not much left today
Life is a highway
I want to ride it all night long
If you're going my way
I want to drive it all night long

Through all the cities and all these towns
It's in my blood and it's all around
I love you now like I loved you then
This is the road and these are the hands
From mozambique to those memphis nights
The khyber pass to vancouver's lights
Knock me down get back up again
You're in my blood I'm not a lonely man

There's no load I can't hold
Road so rough this I know
I'll be there when the light comes in
Tell 'em we're survivors

Chorus x2

There was a distance between you and I
A misunderstanding once but now
We look it in the eye

There's no load I can't hold
Road so rough this I know
I'll be there when the light comes in
Tell 'em we're survivors

Tanner

JACQUELINE MACALLISTER ATE LUNCH IN THE SENIOR SECTION AT THE SAME TIME AS WESLEY LIN.

Band 2007

Woburn High was a place filled with pride and tradition and our Tanner Band was the perfect way to channel all that energy. Members had been trained on their instruments for years, bringing high levels of experience and talent together to create the "musical fusion" that served as a way to pump up students and faculty at school events, concerts, and the ever-popular Tanner Football games. Walking through the halls during fourth period, one might hear the muffled sounds of the traditional "Black and Orange," or a creative interpretation of a famous classical or contemporary arrangement being perfected for future use. No matter the occasion, our band was always prepared to step it up, give it their all, and do us proud. In the back corner of the band room by the door, a sign hung for inspiration and before leaving for next period everyone would jump up and smack it. It read "Play Like A Champion Today," something our favorite "band geeks" strove to achieve in everything they did.

IF YOU DON'T TRAVEL

I always marvel
Whenever I travel

Because if you don't travel
And extensively explore
How can you open those awaiting doors?
Mysteries always lie waiting to be unraveled

I travel with my eyes
Watching those silently cry
Asking themselves the question why
Someone left them without saying goodbye

I travel with my thoughts
Abundant knowledge I have found and sought

I travel with my pen
To write about children, women and men

I travel with my voice
Speaking sensibly refusing to induce confusing noise

I travel with hope
Believing something new will spring into my horoscope
Whether in Africa or whether in Europe
There is always room, there is always scope

I travel to many places
Mix with different culture and races
Identify tribes by their faces
Everyone I always embrace

I travel with or without money
So please listen to my testimony
Every experience is worth life's journey

I travel with intensive faith
Lavishing love rather than being defensive with hate

Because if you don't travel
How can you grow?
How can you know,
What is beneath the dust and below the gravel?

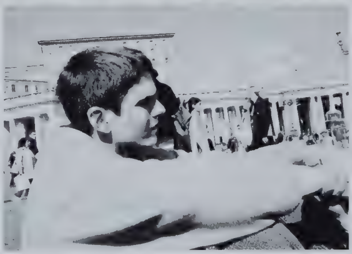
World Travel

It seems like just yesterday was your first day of High School.

2007 Italy

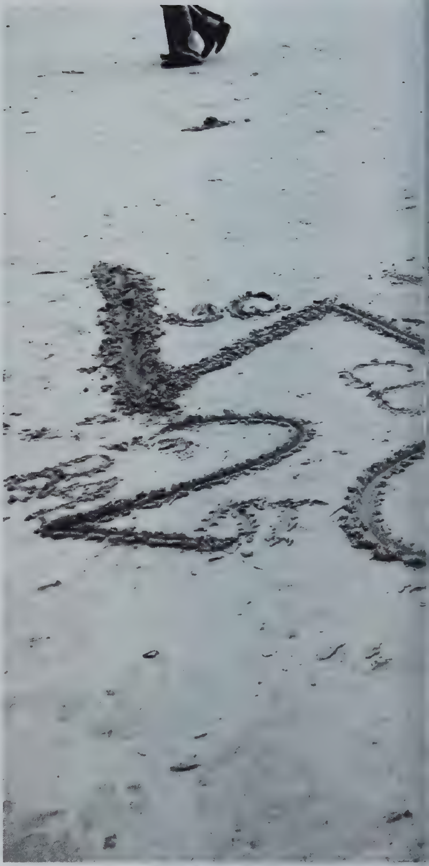
"Buon giorno! Bienvenuti all'Italia!," Elisabetta, our tour manager, enthusiastically shouted as we arrived in Venice. Starting here in Venice we saw many amazing sights such as Piazza San Marco and il grand canale from our gondolas. Continuing to Florence, all twenty-two of us prepared a traditional Italian meal at Apicius, the culinary institute of Florence. Other exciting day trips included the Colloseum, Pompeii, and a climb up Vesuvius. The 2007 Italy trip was an experience that will never be forgotten. Ciao!

Students traveling on the Italian trip purchase extravagant masks to celebrate Carnivale. Similar to our Mardi Gras, Italians celebrate with costumes, masks, and festivals. Kerryn McDonough says, "I really enjoyed Carnivale in Venice, especially the people dressed in elaborate costumes in Piazza San Marco."



Now here you are at the end of this book and the end of your high school career.

2007 France



Bonjour! Bienvenu à France! We met our French families at Charles de Gaulle Airport before driving through the gorgeous French countryside to the town of Pont Sainte-Maxence. Whether it was exploring the Palace of Versailles, discovering the Beaches of Normandy, gallivanting through the streets of Paris, learning how to cook delicious French cuisine, or simply laughing the night away at a Karaoke Bar, not a minute passed unfilled with unforgettable memories. The majestic Eiffel Tower was no longer a tourist attraction from textbooks, but a constant reminder of the incredible bonds we built with our French families and the once-in-a-lifetime opportunity that we were lucky enough to be a part of. Amis pour toujours.

Buenos dias! Bienvenido a Espana. We flew into Mardrid Barajas Airport at approximately 9 am Spain time, also known as 3 am Woburn time. We were greeted by our exchange partners and were quickly taken off to see the sites which included the aqueducts of Segovia, the sword makers of Toledo, and El Valle de los Caidos - which was visible from our bedroom windows. Whether it was attending a Real Madrid game or eating at a small restaurant, Spain was an amazing experience. Amigos para siempre.

Students on the French Exchange make their mark on the Beaches of Normandy. Katie Thompson thought it would be a good idea if everyone signed their name in the sand as a tribute to the soldiers that gave their lives during the Normandy Invasion of World War II.

Dirty Water by The Strandells

Spoken:]
I'm gonna tell you a story
I'm gonna tell you about my town
I'm gonna tell you a big bad story, baby
Aww, it's all about my town

Yeah, down by the river
Down by the banks of the river Charles (aw, that's what's happenin' baby)
That's where you'll find me
Along with lovers, fuggers, and thieves (aw, but they're cool people)
Well I love that dirty water
Oh, Boston, you're my home (oh, you're the Number One place)
Frustrated women (I mean they're frustrated)
Have to be in by twelve o'clock (oh, that's a shame)
But I'm wishin' and a-hopin, oh
That just once those doors weren't locked (I like to save time for my baby to walk around)
Well I love that dirty water
Oh, Boston, you're my home (oh, yeah)

Because I love that dirty water
Oh, oh, Boston, you're my home (oh, yeah)

Well, I love that dirty water (I love it, baby)
I love that dirty water (I love Baw-stun)
I love that dirty water (Have you heard about the Strangler?)
I love that dirty water (I'm the man, I'm the man)
I love that dirty water (Owww!)
I love that dirty water (Come on, come on)

HERFF JONES

A special thank you to all of the wonderful people at the Herf Jones Publishing Company for taking pride in their work and making sure our yearbook is of the best quality possible.

Dear Classmates,

Countless hours of hard work were put into the creation of this book. We hope you will take the time to read closely, as there are many unique and special aspects that no other yearbook has. When reflecting on our class and deciding what theme we wanted to give to the book, we knew that it had to be something completely different and ambitious. We have acheived that goal and hope that many years from now you will use this book to relive that pioneer spirit for which our class was famous for. The road will be long, and at times the directions may seem unclear, but wherever your journey takes you, we wish you the best of luck.

Sincerely,

Your Yearbook Staff

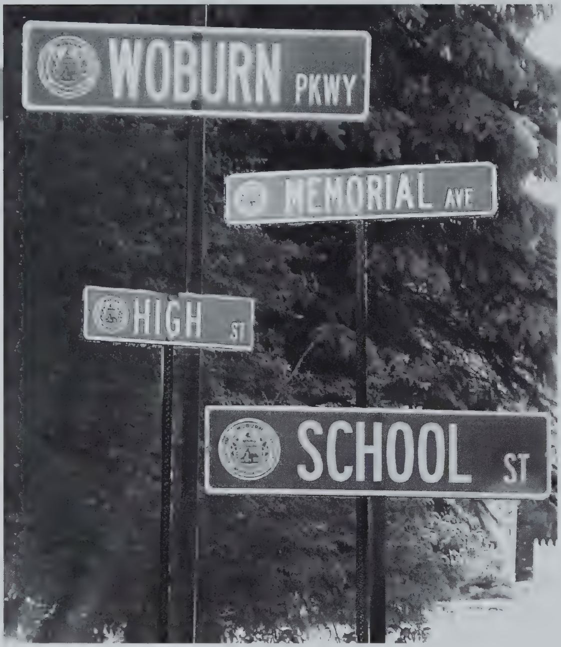
"Let's take the good times as they go, and I'll meet you further on up the road."

-Bruce Springsteen



It is always best to start at the beginning. It is where the adventure begins and where you meet the amazing characters that will eventually drive the story into full throttle. But as I told you, this story is unique...it has no end. See, I like to think of life as a novel with the end ripped out. There is no one ending, no set path. Every day is a winding road, one day here and the next day gone, leading us in endless directions to limitless possibilities. So it really is impossible for this story to have an ending.

Of course, neither is it for the faint of heart; life takes friendship, heart, and courage to stay the course, and for some this seems like an impossible task. But us, we were not those people. We knew what it would take, and we met the challenge with everything we had. But even so, this was only the beginning of the long road ahead. Truly, the only ending you will find here is the end of the beginning.

Those four years we spent together on Innitou Road were filled with countless tales of courage, heart, and friendship. Now they serve as the fuel that keeps us speeding down this highway. That is what life is, after all...just one long, exciting road trip. At times we might not have known where we were going, but by the time we were ready to go our separate ways, we had so many wonderful experiences to guide us. True, each of our lives would take us down many different paths. Some would be bumpy, others cruise-controlled, and still others would seem to take us around in circles, but the friends we made in each other would prove enough to carry us through whatever lay in store.

So for now dear reader, there is not much more I can tell you because the rest is still unwritten: we are living it. But within these pages will forever lie the days when anything was possible, when we sat at the wheel, ready for life to give us that green light. I hope the experiences we shared are now as much a part of you as they are us. Use them wisely; you too are on the road of life and as we discovered, it is the people we travel these roads with and the experiences we share along the way that add up to what our lives are. Will there ever be an end to this story? Not if you keep it alive. Ask any member of the Class of 2008 and they would tell you this: we might have gone our separate ways for now, but all roads lead back here, back to where it all began on Innitou Road...and always will.

The Beginning.

KENIA GEORGES ATTENDED DEVAL PATRICK'S YOUTH INAUGURAL CEREMONY WITH JILLIAN.

There was a distance between you and I
As we sped away at that green light,
Away from everything so familiar.
Who knows where we're going?

But we got headlights to show the way
Through darkness, trouble, and piercing night.
We are built for life. So let the engine roar--
Full tank of courage, heart, and soul.

Life is an open road. You at the wheel,
Push the pedal down, peel away, roll on and on,
There no brakes to slow you down.
No mediocrity to be found.

And as you drive, years and miles flying by,
Your hair in the wind, dreams in the sky,
I'm sure we'll meet again my friend. Why?
Because one fact can never weather:

We took the road less traveled by,
And that will keep us close…Forever.

Kasey,

You are an amazing person. I hope you know how lucky I am to have you in my life. From the moment you came into this world you have been a "fighter"! It's no wonder they call you "Krash"... you don't let anything stand in you way. The second I held you in my arms my heart belonged to you, my little miracle. As you grew, the odds were against you and life threw you a lot of curves but, every time you'd get right back-up and "into the game". Flashing that beautiful smile you never gave up. I admire you and I am certainly not the only one. There are so many people that have your back. It is their love and support that have helped you to grow into such a fine young man. I am so sorry for the few that tried to destroy your confidence and self esteem along the way. I am so proud of your inner- strength to overcome and accomplish your goals but, even prouder still of the way you live life. Whether you win or lose, you do it with integrity and humanity. Although this maybe the end of one journey in your life- there is so much more to discover, to dream and to explore.

Some of the things I hope for you my son are...
...that the world will treat you fairly.
...that you will be appreciated as the one-in-a-million person that you are.
...that a wealth of opportunities will come your way.
...that your blessings will be many, troubles few and life will be very generous in giving all the happiness and success you desire.

No matter where you are or what you are doing- your are my son-and that means the world to me. I love you.

Woburn legend holds that an ancient Native American tribe known as the Massachusett once lived at the base of Mt. Townada. Stretching toward the heavens, this mountain was deemed sacred ground. It was believed to be the resting place of Manitou, the Great Spirit of the tribe. On a clear day, the summit of the mountain was reflected in the waters of the nearby lake in such a way that the tribe could gaze upon the face of their beloved spirit. To catch a glimpse of the warmhearted smile of Manitou in the rippling waters was considered the highest of fortune, and as a sign of respect and gratitude for for watching over their tribe, the Massachusett named the lake Innitou, meaning "Looking Place of the Great Spirit." To us, Lake Innitou has become known as "Horn Pond" and Mt. Towanda as "Horn Pond Mountain." Just as the Great Spirit was once reflected in these waters, this book is also a reflection: a reflection of our memories at Woburn High.
